(The New York World). ensus of expert opinion is, roves may win unless Giants at them out. This is a sure tip.

BE by the papers that the Braves now conceded a possible shance to best the Giants. If w keep up their present gait right the finish and get more games the New York bunch, taking present four-game lead into conation, it is generally admitted they may win. On the other . If the Braves break down and bot how to hit the ball and run and their pitchers lose control toes the pill into the grand es, they may lose the lead, prog. If the Braves' pitching staff n't crack it will continue to pitch ok, the Braves will in all probatheir games. As fo the Glants, they are said, on perfectly good au-thority, to be "gathering momentum." and if they don't gather too much entum downward, they may go

FOR PLAYERS AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Acton, Winner of Second Race. Cost Bookmakers Thousands —Striker Wins Easily.

(Special to The Evening World,)
HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 22. The second day of the race meeting here attracted a big crowd, many New Yorkers being in the throng. It was a disastrous day for the layers. They lost thousands on the second race and this was followed by victories for the players in the third and fourth events. The popularity of racing here is best illustrated by the large fields entered in each race.

Walters, which had been quietly supported, was the first to show after the rise of the barrier in the opening event, and showed such keen speed that he soon had all behind him in trouble before half the journey had been covered. While Walters was airing along in front Butwell was having plenty of trouble with Royal Meteor, the favorite, and this told in the end, Walters lasting long enough to win by a head from the good thing, Operth, with Royal Meteor obtaining third position.

No. not the inverse of luxury.

Big operators went to Striker and his price was cut to 4 to 5 at post time. The start found Phyllis Antoinette leading. When straightened in the stretch Karrick made play with the favorite. He won easily. Laura held on well to race into the place, while Phyllis Antoinette lasted to get show position.
